'Diana's Picnic' Set

History

Who is Diana?

Diana Barry is a character in Lucy Maud Montgomery's book, 'Anne of Green Gables'. Diana wears a dress very similar to this one when we first see her, during the church picnic in the film version of the book.

Fashion

The Edwardian period is named after Victoria's son, Edward, who was King of England during this time. Styles changed drastically during this time. Corsets began to go out of style towards World War I, dresses also became shorter and more practical.

This dress is similar to what might have been worn during the Edwardian period.
